REGISTRATION PROCESSING TIMES

The Copyright Office's processing times vary based on a number of factors, including how difficult a claim is to review, whether the Copyright Office needs to correspond with an applicant, and the number of registration specialists available to review claims. For example, claims take longer to process when applicants submit online claims but do not submit physical deposits when necessary, or when applicants do not fully respond to an examiner's questions. The Office encourages applicants to refer to the Compendium of U.S. Copyright Office Practices and the Copyright Office's circulars prior to submitting applications to avoid unnecessary delays and correspondence.

Overall processing times usually are longer for claims submitted entirely by mail, so the Copyright Office encourages applying online.

The Office understands processing times are important and is working to improve them.

For questions, please contact the Public Information Office by phone at (202) 707-3000 or 1-877-476-0778 (toll-free), or online at www.copyright.gov/help. While the Public Information Office can provide information on pending claims, it can take the Copyright Office as long as the outer ranges set forth below to issue decisions on whether to register claims.

The average processing time for all claims is 7 months. Refer to the charts below for details on web and mail claims, and claims with correspondence.

REGISTRATION PROCESSING TIME FAQs

How Does the Copyright Office Measure Processing Times?

The Copyright Office measures processing times from the time a record is created in our system until a registration decision has been made. For claims submitted via our website, a record is created when we receive the application and payment; for claims submitted by mail, a record is created when the application information has been transcribed into our system. Claims that are received without a deposit, correct application, or full payment will have a delayed registration decision and therefore take longer to process.

Note that the most recent time frame ranges reflect a significant effort to close the oldest claims in our system, and we expect shorter average ranges in the next processing time calculation update.

How long does the registration process take, and when will I receive my certificate?

The amount of time needed to examine a claim and issue a certificate varies depending on a number of factors. These factors may include the complexity of your claim, the Office's available resources when your claim is received, and the total number of claims that are currently pending with the Copyright Office. Processing times vary depending on whether you submitted your claim through the electronic registration system or sent it to the Office by mail. Processing times also vary depending on whether there are problems with your claim, and whether the Office must communicate with you to address those issues.

The Office understands that processing times are important to applicants and continues to strive towards making the examination process more efficient.

Average processing times for the following types of claims is available on the Office's website:

- Claims submitted electronically with no correspondence
- Claims submitted by mail with no correspondence
- Claims submitted electronically that require correspondence
- Claims submitted by mail that require correspondence

How can I ensure my claim is processed in a timely manner?

Claims that are submitted electronically are typically processed the fastest. Processing times are typically longer if you submit your application by mail, or if you submit an electronic application and mail your deposit to the Office. Thus, the Office encourages applicants to use the electronic application and upload an electronic copy of your work whenever possible.

Processing times also increase if there are problems or deficiencies with your application, deposit, or filing fee, and if the Office must correspond with you to address these issues. To avoid delays, the Office encourages applicants to refer to the Compendium of U.S. Copyright Office Practices and the Copyright Office's circulars when completing your application and prior to submitting your claim.

Once your claim has been filed, you should routinely monitor your email account for messages from the Copyright Office. If you receive an email from the Office you should respond within 45 days after the message was sent, and you should provide a full and complete response to the examiner's questions.

Why is my claim taking longer than the average processing time shown on the Copyright Office's website?

Processing times increase whenever there are problems or deficiencies with an application, deposit, or filing fee, and whenever the Copyright Office must call or write the applicant to address these issues. For example, processing times increase when applicants submit an electronic application, but do not submit the deposit within the time allowed, or when applicants upload an electronic deposit in cases where a physical deposit is required. Processing times also increase when an examiner emails the applicant but does not receive a complete response to his or her questions. While the Office will attempt to solve some problems through correspondence with the applicant, claims with deficiencies or inaccuracies will always take longer to resolve.

Who do I contact with questions?

The Public Information Office can provide general information on your pending claim if you contact them by phone at (202) 707-3000 or 1-877-476-0778 (toll-free), or online at www.copyright.gov/help.

Also, contracts between Verizon and its business customers (both U.S. and international) may contain additional privacy-related terms and conditions that are presented in other ways.

One such program is Verizon Selects \(http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/verizon-selects-faqs/\).

Information provided to us by third parties

When you purchase products or apply for service with us, we may obtain credit information about you from outside credit reporting agencies to help us with customer authentication and credit-related decisions. If you lease your residence, we may have information about how to reach your landlord and whether landlord permission is required to install our facilities.

Verizon obtains information from outside companies including demographic and interest data (such as gender, age range, education level, sports enthusiast, or frequent diner), as well as information such as device type, carrier, city and state. We use this data and combine it with other information we have about you to help make marketing offers more relevant to you, and to help us better analyze customer information for business modeling purposes.

When you use social media credentials to login to or interact with a Verizon site or offer, we may collect information about your social media profile, such as your interests, "likes" and friends list. We use this information, for example, to personalize your Verizon experiences and marketing communications, to enhance our services, and to better serve you. You can control this data sharing via options in your social media accounts.

We also obtain contact information and other marketing lead information from third parties, website "refer-a-friend" options or social media platforms and may combine it with information we have to contact you or direct Verizon's marketing offers to you.

Information collected on Verizon websites and apps

When you use Verizon websites and apps, information is collected about your device and your visit including browsing, searching and buying activity as you interact with our sites and apps; IP address; mobile telephone, device numbers and identifiers; account information; web addresses of the sites you come from and go to next; and information about your connection, including your device's browser, operating system, platform type and Internet connection speed. We use this information for operational, performance measurement and other business purposes; and to help us deliver more relevant Verizon marketing messages on our websites, on non-Verizon websites, by our representatives, via mail and email, or via other Verizon services or devices. This information is also used to tailor the content you see, manage the frequency with which you see an advertisement, tailor advertisements to better match your interests and understand the effectiveness of our advertising. We also may use this information to assess the effectiveness of our sites and to help you should you request help with navigation problems on our sites.

Certain Verizon vendors may place and read cookies (<http://www.verizon.com/about/privacy/cookies>) on our sites to help us deliver Verizon marketing messages as described above. We require that these vendors provide consumers with the ability to opt out of their use of information for these purposes. When information is used to deliver Verizon marketing messages on non-Verizon sites, in accordance with industry self-regulatory principles (<http://www.aboutads.info/>), you should see this icon  in or around the Verizon ads. Clicking on this icon provides information about the companies and data practices that were used to deliver the ad and also describes how you may opt out of this type of advertising program. Information you provide

When you contact us for information or when you enter a Verizon-sponsored or affiliated contest, sweepstakes or promotion, we may use the information you supply to provide you with information about Verizon services, programs and offerings. Certain promotions may require that we disclose information such as contest winners or provide information for prize fulfillment, and as required by law or permitted by the promotion's official rules. Information you provide on our websites about your preferred location and other preferences may be used to provide you with more relevant product recommendations, services and special offers.

If you provide information to us in the context of an event or promotion that Verizon sponsors with another organization, or if you visit a co-sponsored site or use a co-sponsored service, you also may be providing information to the co-sponsor. You should refer to that co-sponsor's privacy policy for information about its practices which may differ from Verizon's practices.

We also collect information from you when you participate in surveys or provide other feedback to us regarding our products or services, when you register to receive news or public policy updates, or when you apply for a job with or a grant from Verizon. We use this information only for the purpose for which you provide it.

Verizon may send you emails about your account or about products, services, and promotions that may be of interest to you. We may collect information when you open these emails or click on links within the emails. This information is used to personalize the content of the emails themselves and make future communications and marketing more interesting to you. Please note that Verizon will not ask you to send sensitive personal or account information via email.

Additional information for Verizon Wireless customers

Verizon Wireless includes a unique identifier (<http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/unique-identifier-header-faqs/>) in certain web traffic from your mobile device to help deliver relevant advertising. If you opt out of the Relevant Mobile Advertising (<http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/mobile-ads-faqs/>) program and you have not joined Verizon Selects (<http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/verizon-selects-faqs/>), Verizon Wireless will stop inserting the Unique Identifier Header (UIDH) (<http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/unique-identifier-header-faqs/>). The identifier will continue to appear for a short period of time while we are updating our systems.

As detailed above, some Verizon wireless devices include system software that collects information about network and device conditions we use to secure and improve services and products. Other Verizon-supplied system software enables automatic installation of apps upon device activation and with your consent at later times. For example, when you interact with a voice response system or an advertisement, the software can install an app you request or open an app or browser to a specific page.

This software collects information about the actions it takes, including when an app is first opened or is uninstalled. Please note that some of the apps installed in this way do not have icons on the device screen. These apps have limited utility. For example, they may facilitate the download of apps you select for your device, update apps you already have on your device, or report to an app owner that an app has been opened on the device. You can see and also delete or disable apps installed using Verizon-supplied software (whether the apps do or do not have icons on your device screen) using your device's Application Manager under Settings. Apps on your device are governed by their own terms and privacy policy.

Information about the Cable Act

To the extent that Section 631 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (the "Cable Act") applies to services you purchase, it entitles you to know about the personally identifiable information a cable service provider collects. This includes the nature of the use and disclosure of this information and to whom it may be disclosed, how long personally identifiable information is maintained, and how subscribers may access it. In addition, the Cable Act imposes limits on the collection and disclosure of personal information and gives subscribers the ability to enforce their privacy rights. (Personally identifiable information does not include aggregate data that does not identify a particular person).

The Cable Act allows a provider to use its cable system to collect personally identifiable information necessary to render a cable service or other services provided to subscribers and to detect and prevent unauthorized access to services. Additional personally identifiable information may be collected with the subscriber's prior consent. Personally identifiable information may be used or disclosed without the subscriber's consent where necessary to render services, and to conduct legitimate business activities related to services provided.

We may be required by law to disclose personally identifiable information to a governmental entity to comply with valid legal process, such as warrants, court orders or subpoenas, but we will not disclose records revealing your selection of video programming unless we receive a court order indicating that the governmental entity has made a specified showing of relevance and you were afforded an opportunity to contest the order. We may be required to disclose personally identifiable information (including your selection of video programming) to a non-governmental entity to comply with a court order, after you have been provided notice.

If you believe that your privacy rights have been violated, please e-mail us (<mailto:privacyoffice@verizon.com>) and we will work with you to address your concerns. If you believe that you have been aggrieved as a result of a violation of the Cable Act, you may enforce the limitations imposed by the Cable Act through a civil action in a United States district court seeking damages, attorney's fees, and litigation costs. Other rights and remedies may also be available to you under federal or other applicable laws.

The Cable Act permits the disclosure of customer names and addresses as long as a subscriber has been provided with the opportunity to prohibit or limit this disclosure and the disclosure does not reveal, directly or indirectly, the subscriber's viewing or other uses of the cable or other services provided. If we intend to share data in this way, we will provide you with the opportunity to prohibit or limit this type of sharing.

Advertising and insights programs

Relevant Mobile Advertising

The Verizon Wireless Relevant Mobile Advertising \(http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/mobile-ads-faqs/\) program helps make marketing you see more personalized and useful to you across the devices and services you use. This program shares information with Oath (formed by the combination of AOL and Yahoo).

The Relevant Mobile Advertising program uses your postal and email addresses; certain information about your Verizon Wireless products and services such as your device type; and demographic and interest information you provide or we obtain from other companies such as your gender, age range and interests (i.e. sports fan, frequent diner or pet owner). This information may be combined with information collected by Oath advertising services on devices you use to access Oath services and visit third-party websites and apps that include Oath advertising services (such as web browsing, app usage and location), as well as information that we obtain from third-party partners and advertisers. The advertising program uses online and device identifiers including browser cookies, advertising IDs from Apple and Google, and Verizon-created identifiers, including the Unique Identifier Header \(or UIDH \(http://www.verizonwireless.com/support/unique-identifier-header-faqs/\)\) and other ids created to facilitate data sharing with Oath.

We do not share information that identifies you personally outside of Verizon as part of this program other than with vendors and partners who do work for us. We require that these vendors and partners protect the information and use it only for the services they are providing us. You have a choice \(https://wbillpay.verizonwireless.com/vzw/secure/setPrivacy.action\) about participating in this program.

Business and Marketing Insights

Verizon Wireless and Oath use information we have about you to create aggregate business and marketing insights. The information we use for this program and the insights we develop do not identify you individually and may be shared with third parties. The program \(https://www.verizonwireless.com/support/business-marketing-reports-faqs/\) uses Verizon information about how you use your mobile device (such as web browsing, device location, and app/feature use), certain information about your Verizon products and services (such as device type and amount of use), and demographic and interest information you provide or we obtain from other companies (such as gender, age range and interests). We may also use Oath information about your use of services (such as email, search, sites and apps) and visits to third-party sites and apps that include Oath services (such as web browsing, app usage and location), as well as information Oath obtains from third-party partners. The program may also use information provided by business and marketing clients who want insights related to their own businesses. Verizon may also share location information with others in a way that does not personally identify you so that they may produce aggregate insights such as traffic reports. You have a choice \(https://ebillpay.verizonwireless.com/vzw/secure/setPrivacy.action\) about whether your Verizon information is used for these purposes. Oath data may continue to be used to create insights even if you opt out of the use of Verizon information. Additional detail about Oath information used for this program can be found in Oath's privacy policy \(https://policies.oath.com/us/en/oath/privacy/index.html\).

Relevant Online Advertising

The Relevant Online Advertising program helps make online ads you see more interesting and useful. The program uses Verizon information including your postal address and information about your use of Verizon products and services (such as service packages, Fios TV purchases and viewership categories), demographic and interest information we obtain from other companies (such as gender, age-range, sports fan, frequent diner or pet owner). The program may also use information provided by advertisers and advertising partners. This information is used to determine whether you fit within an audience an advertiser is trying to reach. We do not share information that identifies you personally as part of these programs other than with vendors and partners who do work for us. We require that these vendors and partners protect the information and use it only for the services they are providing us. Relevant TV Advertising

Verizon's Relevant TV Advertising program helps make Fios TV ads you see more interesting and useful. The program uses Verizon information including your postal address and information about your use of Verizon products and services (such as service packages, connected devices, TV and video purchases and program viewing data), demographic and interest information you provide or that we obtain from other companies - such as gender, family size, and luxury car owner. The program may also use information provided by advertisers and advertising partners. The ads may appear on a variety of platforms where Fios television customers can access video content. We require that these vendors and partners protect the information and use it only for the services they are providing us. Information we share

Information shared within the Verizon family of companies:

Verizon shares customer information within our family of companies for a variety of purposes, including, for example, providing you with the latest information about our products and services and offering you our latest promotions. You can limit the sharing of certain types of customer information, specifically, Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI) and certain credit information, within the Verizon family of companies for marketing services to you different from your current services.

Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI) is information that relates to the type, quantity, destination, technical configuration, location, amount of use and related billing information of your telecommunications or interconnected Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) services. Federal law governs our use and sharing of CPNI. Credit information includes your credit score, information found in your consumer reports, and your account history.

We may also share information with Oath as described in this privacy policy or in a separate service-specific policy. Oath will honor the choices Verizon customers have made about the uses of their information when they receive and use this data.

Information shared outside the Verizon family of companies:

Except as explained in this Privacy Policy, in privacy policies for specific services, or in agreements with our customers, Verizon does not sell, license or share information that individually identifies our customers, people using our networks, or website visitors with others outside the Verizon family of companies that are not performing work on Verizon's behalf without the consent of the person whose information will be shared.

Verizon uses vendors and partners for a variety of business purposes such as to help us offer, provide, repair, restore and bill for services we provide. We share information with those vendors and partners when it is necessary for them to perform work on our behalf. For example, we may provide your credit card information and billing address to our payment processing company solely for the purpose of processing payment for a transaction you have requested. We require that these vendors and partners protect the customer information we provide to them and limit their use of Verizon customer data to the purposes for which it was provided. We do not permit these types of vendors and partners to use this information for their own marketing purposes.

With your authorization, we provide certain account, device, and profile data related to your Verizon Wireless account to third parties for the purpose of helping companies you do business with verify your identity and help protect you against identity theft and account takeover. Verizon only shares this information with third parties that are contractually required to protect your data and use it for the limited purpose of supporting identity verification. You have choices \(http://www.verizon.com/about/privacy/full-privacy-policy#limit-section\) about this sharing.

As described in more detail in other sections of this policy, Verizon also may share certain information with outside companies, for example, to assist with the delivery of advertising campaigns, or preparing and sharing aggregate reports. This information does not identify Verizon customers individually.

Verizon may publish the names, addresses and telephone numbers of wireline telephone customers ourselves or we may provide this information to directory publishers, directory assistance services, or others. These companies can use the data they receive from us in other formats or for other purposes and they may make it available to others. Verizon Wireless does not publish directories of customers' wireless phone numbers, and we do not make them available to others for listing in directories unless you request that we do so. We also provide the names and telephone numbers of wireline and wireless customers for Caller ID and similar services.

We may disclose information that individually identifies our customers or identifies customer devices in certain circumstances, such as:

- to comply with valid legal process including subpoenas, court orders or search warrants, and as otherwise authorized by law; in cases involving danger of death or serious physical injury to any person or other emergencies;
- to protect our rights or property, or the safety of our customers or employees;
- to protect against fraudulent, malicious, abusive, unauthorized or unlawful use of or subscription to our products and services and to protect our network, services, devices and users from such use;
- to advance or defend against complaints or legal claims in court, administrative proceedings and elsewhere;
- to credit bureaus or collection agencies to determine credit risk, for reporting purposes or to obtain payment for Verizon-billed products and services;
- to a third-party that you have authorized to verify your account information;
- when you have authorized others to authenticate you or verify your account information;
- to outside auditors and regulators; or
- with your consent.

When you purchase services offered jointly by Verizon and one of our partners, customer information may be received by both Verizon and our partner that is providing your service. For these jointly offered services, you should also review the partner company's privacy policy which may include practices that are different from the practices described here.

If Verizon enters into a merger, acquisition or sale of all or a portion of its assets or business, customer information will also be transferred as part of or in connection with the transaction.

Information provided to or used by advertising entities or social networks

You may see third-party advertisements on some Verizon websites, services, apps and devices. Some advertisements are chosen by companies that operate on our sites and other sites (for example, ad servers, ad networks, or technology platforms) to place ads on behalf of advertisers. These companies may place and access cookies on your device to collect information about your visit on websites and may collect device advertising identifiers from your mobile operating system to learn about your use of apps, including ours. The information they collect from our sites and apps is in a form that does not identify you personally and may be combined with similar data they obtain from other websites and apps to help advertisers better reach audiences they wish to target. Targeting may be accomplished by tailoring advertising to interests that they infer from your interactions on our sites and apps and your interaction with other sites and services where these companies also are present.

If you choose to interact with specific advertisers who advertise on our apps, sites or services, the information you provide to them is subject to the conditions of their specific privacy policies.

Advertising that is customized based on predictions generated from your visits over time and across different websites is sometimes called "online behavioral" or "interest-based" advertising. In accordance with industry self-regulatory principles (<http://www.aboutads.info/>), we require that companies disclose when they are using online behavioral advertising programs to deliver third-party ads on our sites or collecting information about your visit to our sites for these purposes and give consumers the ability to opt out of this use of their information. You will see an icon . in or around third-party advertisements that are delivered on our sites using behavioral advertising programs. Clicking on this icon will provide additional information about the companies and data practices that were used to deliver the ad as well as information on how you may opt out of these advertising programs. Additional information about your options regarding the use of your information for advertising purposes can be found below. View additional information about online behavioral advertising \(http://www.aboutads.info/\). Please note that Verizon does not have control over or access to information contained in the cookies that are set on your computer by ad servers, ad networks or third-party advertisers.

Similarly, advertising may be customized based on predictions developed from your use of applications and industry self-regulatory principles also apply. This type of advertising involves the use of device advertising identifiers. You can opt out of this use of your device advertising identifier by selecting "Limit Ad Tracking" or "Opt out of Interest Based Ads" from your device settings page.

View information about "cookies" and related technologies \(http://www.verizon.com/about/privacy/cookies\)

We also may permit advertisers on our sites, apps and services to place ads based on certain information we have about your Verizon products and services as well as geographic and demographic data. Information used for this purpose does not identify you individually.

Verizon websites and services may include social network or other third-party plug-ins and widgets that may provide information to their associated social networks or third-parties about your interactions with Verizon pages you visit or services you use, even if you do not click on or otherwise interact with the plug-in or widget.

Telemarketing

To add your numbers to this list, please call 1-888-382-1222 or visit the National Do Not Call Registry \(http://www.donotcall.gov/\).

Marketing e-mail, text messages, postal mail and door-to-door calls

Marketing emails you receive from Verizon include an unsubscribe instruction (usually found at the bottom of the email) that you may use to opt out of receiving future marketing-related emails.

This type of mailing will continue even if you opt out of receiving marketing-related postal mailings from Verizon.

Information used for online advertising

You have choices about whether certain information collected on websites, including Verizon's, is used to customize advertising based on predictions generated from your visits over time and across different websites and apps. When you see this icon  in or around an advertisement you can click on the icon to see additional information on the companies and data practices that were used to deliver the ad and descriptions of how you may opt out of these advertising programs. You may also visit Digital Advertising Alliance's Consumer Choices \(http://www.aboutads.info/\) to learn more or to limit the collection of information by these parties. Similarly, many mobile devices offer controls you can set to limit the advertising use of information collected across mobile apps on your device.

Please note that many opt outs use browser cookies or device controls and are specific to the device and browser you are using. If you buy a new computer, change web browsers or devices or delete the cookies on your computer, you may need to opt out again. In addition, ads you receive may still be tailored using other techniques such as publisher, device or browser-enabled targeting. You should check the privacy policies of the products, sites, apps and services you use to learn more about any such techniques and your options.

You also can limit the collection of certain website information by deleting or disabling cookies. When you turn this setting to "off," the device stops collecting your location and stops transmitting location information to apps on the device, including Verizon apps that use location information. Other device settings allow you to stop the transmission of location data to individual apps on your device.

We may use certain location information we collect, such as information about the location of Wi-Fi access points, to help improve location accuracy in our services or apps.
